- They are no longer necessary in relation to the purposes for which they were collected or processed.
- The data subject has exercised the right of opposition and other legitimate reasons for the processing do not prevail.
- The data must be erased to fulfill a legal obligation of the Data Controller.

The data subject shall not have the right for the Data Controller to erase their data when the processing is necessary:

- To exercise the right to freedom of expression and information.
- To fulfill a legal obligation of the Data Controller.
- For the preparation, exercise or defense of claims.
- For public interest based on current legislation for public health reasons or for historical, statistical or scientific research purposes.

Right to data portability:

You have the right for the Data Controller to transfer your data to another Data Controller or to the same data subject, through a structured format of habitual use and mechanical reading, when the processing is carried out by automated means and is based on:

- The consent of the data subject for specific purposes.
- The execution of a contract or pre-contract with the data subject.

The right to data portability will not apply when:

- The transmission is technically impossible.
- It can negatively affect the rights and freedoms of third parties.
- The processing has a public interest mission based on current legislation.

Right to restriction of processing:

1. The data subject shall have the right to obtain from the Data Controller restriction of processing where one of the following applies:

- the accuracy of the personal data is contested by the data subject, for a period enabling the Data Controller to verify the accuracy of the personal data;
- the processing is unlawful, and the data subject opposes the erasure of the personal data and requests the restriction of their use instead;
- the controller no longer needs the personal data for the purposes of the processing, but they are required by the data subject for the establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims;
- the data subject has objected to processing, pending the verification whether the legitimate grounds of the controller override those of the data subject.

2. Where processing has been restricted under paragraph 1, such personal data shall, with the exception of storage, only be processed with the data subject's consent or for the establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims or for the protection of the rights of another natural or legal person or for reasons of important public interest of the European Union or of a Member State.

3. A data subject who has obtained restriction of processing pursuant to paragraph 1 shall be informed by the controller before the restriction of processing is lifted.

Right of opposition:

The data subject shall have the right to object to processing of personal data, on grounds relating to his or her situation, at any time. The controller shall no longer process the personal data unless the controller demonstrates compelling legitimate grounds for the processing which override the interests, rights and freedoms of the data subject or for the establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims.

Where personal data are processed for direct marketing purposes, the data subject shall have the right to object at any time to processing of personal data concerning him or her for such marketing, which includes profiling to the extent that it is related to such direct marketing.

Where the data subject objects to processing for direct marketing purposes, the personal data shall no longer be processed for such purposes.

Right not to be subject to profiling:

The data subject shall have the right not to be subject to a decision based solely on automated processing, including profiling, which produces legal effects concerning him or her or similarly significantly affects him or her, mainly when is referred to the following personal aspects:

- Professional performance.
- Economic situation.
- Health.
- Preferences or personal interests.
- Reliability.
- Behavior.
- Location or movements of the person.

When profiling is based solely on automated processing:

- The data subject will have the right to be informed if the decision that can be taken could have legal effects that significantly affect him.
- The data subject will have the right to obtain human intervention from the Responsible, to express their point of view and to challenge the decision, if the processing has been authorized by:
 - The explicit consent of the data subject.
 - A contract between the Responsible and the data subject.

It will not apply to the right not to be subject to profiling when the decision that can be taken as a result of it is authorized by:

This right shall not apply if the decision:

- is necessary for entering, or performance of, a contract between the data subject and a data controller;
- is authorized by European Union or Member State law to which the controller is subject, and which also lays down suitable measures to safeguard the data subject's rights and freedoms and legitimate interests; or
- is based on the data subject's explicit consent.
